

LC Optical Coupler Manufacturer

Article Overview

Leading LC optical coupler manufacturers include Corning, Rosenberger OSI, TE Connectivity, ACON OPTICS, and SENKO, offering high-performance connectors for singlemode and multimode fiber applications.

Key Manufacturers and Offerings

Corning provides a wide range of LC connectors and adapters with high repeatability, low insertion loss, and long-term stability. Their 721 series uses tightly toleranced ceramic ferrules for consistent low-loss performance, and they offer LC adapters to support interconnection in various applications. Rosenberger OSI specializes in small-form-factor LC connectors for telecommunications, data centers, and LANs. They offer LC/PC and LC/APC variants, including compact and high-density designs with features like push-pull tabs, kink protection, and tool-free polarity reversal, suitable for high-density panels. TE Connectivity manufactures LC connectors for high-density aerospace and networking applications. Their products include single-fiber ferrule kits compatible with Telcordia GR-326 and TIA/EIA 568B.3 standards, supporting both singlemode and multimode fibers with easy field installation. ACON OPTICS offers innovative LC connectors such as the Uniboot Plus Easy-Pull and Switchable Uniboot connectors. These are designed for high-density networks, providing tool-free polarity reversal, space-saving designs, and simplified assembly. ACON OPTICS has over 20 years of experience in fiber optic interconnect solutions and partners with major communication equipment manufacturers. SENKO Advanced Components provides versatile LC connectors including the LC EZ-Flip, Switchable Uniboot, and Micro LC solutions. Their products focus on high-density applications, fast polarity switching without tools, robust unibody designs, and mechanical network security features. S...
