

Price of Controllable Power Distribution Box

Article Overview

The price of controllable power distribution boxes typically ranges from $100 for basic residential units to over $2,000 for advanced industrial or smart-controlled systems.

Price Range Overview

- Residential and small commercial units: Basic controllable distribution boxes with single-phase configurations and limited circuits generally cost $100–$500 depending on brand, material, and included safety features (circuit breakers, surge protection) .
- Commercial and industrial units: Three-phase systems, higher amperage capacity, and robust enclosures for harsh environments can range from $500–$2,000 or more, especially when including smart monitoring, remote control, or digital display features .
- Custom or OEM units: Prices vary significantly based on specifications, volume, and customization options such as busbar modifications, IP-rated enclosures, or company branding. Bulk orders can reduce per-unit costs .

Factors Affecting Cost

- Voltage and amperage capacity: Higher capacity units require more durable components and larger enclosures, increasing cost .
- Number of circuits: More circuits and modular designs add complexity and price .
- Material and durability: Weather-resistant or corrosion-proof enclosures for outdoor or industrial use carry premium pricing
